THE DOCTOR IN COUNCIL.

Annual Meeting of the State Eclectic Medical Society.

The Address of Welcome and Response.

This forenoon at 10 o'clock the fifteenth annual meeting of the Illinois State Medical Society began at the City Hall in the council chamber, and there were present at the opening hour about 25 members. The officers of the society are: President—E. K. Stratford, M. D., Chicago. First Vice President—W. H. Hobson, M. D., Irving. Second Vice President—N. M. Carter, M. D., Lincoln. Treasurer—R. F. Bennett, M. D., Litchfield. Rec. Sec. pro. tem.—D. A. Cashman, M. D., Chicago. Cor. Secretary—N. H. Paaren, M. D., Chicago.

The meeting was called to order by President Stratford, and prayer was offered by Rev. N. S. Haynes, of Decatur, State Evangelist of the Christian Church.

The address of welcome on behalf of Decatur and her hospitable citizens was delivered by Hon. W. E. Nelson, of Decatur, who was introduced by Mayor Chambers. The welcome was of a most cordial character, and the response on behalf of the society was made by President Stratford, who thanked the city's representatives for the kindly words expressed by him.

The following committee on credentials was appointed: Dr. Jay, of Chicago; Dr. Clark, of Decatur; Dr. Duff, of Chicago, whose report subsequently presented was adopted.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS. President Stratford delivered his annual address. It contained words commendatory of the Eclectic school of medicine. It rejects the false and embraces the true methods. We have never sought to create any monopoly. But our rivals, who boast of being regulars, have discarded their lancet and many of their arts and nostrums. The Homeopaths are seeking a broader field than that of infinitesimal area fenced in by the limits of "similia similibus curantur." Both are coming to us, though neither will acknowledge the fact. * * * The great aim of eclecticism is to lay the deepest and broadest foundation. A broad and liberal culture is indispensable. Eclecticism can maintain the prestige of its name only by thorough culture. Eclecticism is no longer an experiment, no longer simply an innovation upon time-honored customs. It is the principle of enlarged conception of truth, an inductive philosophy, and is laden with the facts and products of experience. Representatives of our system are located in almost every city and town in the country. The closing portion of the address was of an eulogistic character, complimentary to the bravery and patience and faithfulness of all physicians, no matter of what school.

The address was listened to with marked attention and was received with applause.

AFTER the circulation of documents and action on the report of the committee on credentials, the meeting adjourned until 2 o'clock this afternoon.

THE report of Secretary Cashman shows that there are now 161 members of the state society and that there are about 700 physicians of the Eclectic school of medicine in Illinois. The report also shows that the society is on a sound financial basis and that it is flourishing.

THE officers of the Illinois State Eclectic Association have their headquarters at the Palace hotel, where they can be found when not in attendance at the convention at the opera house.

PUBLIC ADDRESS. Dr. Duff, of Chicago, will deliver an address on "Popular Medicine" at the opera house to-night. The public generally is cordially invited to be present. Admission free.

THE Memorial Services. The continued rain of to-day interfered with the Memorial Day parade, and outdoor ceremonies at Greenwood cemetery, and the G. A. R. made a change of programme, giving notice of the fact by distributing circulars, announcing that the ceremonies would be observed at the tabernacle. This forenoon the members of Dunham Post, No. 141, presented 150 handsome bouquets from the Dayton Dunham greenhouse and decorated the graves of the fallen heroes in Greenwood cemetery. Dr. Davies will deliver the Memorial oration at the tabernacle this afternoon, where a part of the Grand Army of the Republic ceremonies will be observed. Flowers brought to the tabernacle will be taken to the cemetery by the members of the Post and strewn upon the graves.

AT 2 this afternoon Dunham Post formed in line and marched to the tabernacle, headed by the G. A. R. band. At the tabernacle had assembled a large company of people, 150 members of the two assemblies of Knights of Labor, wearing badges, members of the local military in uniform, and firemen. Nearly all of the business houses are closed this afternoon in obedience to the request of Mayor Chambers.

Cyclone Belies. Rev. Dr. Davies brought to our office last evening various cyclone relics from the region devastated near Hillsboro, including a large photograph of the scene near what was once one of the best farm houses in the neighborhood. Among the curious things shown by the Doctor are numerous pieces of wood and bark into which had been driven by the wind little bits of straw and dead grass. One piece of bark had a straw forced clear through it, showing the terrific force of the storm.

Knights Templar. Special convocation of Beaumont Commandery, No. 9, K. T., Thursday evening, 31st inst., at 7:30 o'clock for work. A full attendance requested.

Burglars Abroad.

During last night one or more burglars entered Alex Nebinger's residence on West North street, by raising one of the rear windows on the ground floor which was not fastened securely by the patent arrangement. It was the only window in the house that could have been lifted without making a noise that might have awakened the sleeping inmates. This morning when Mr. Nebinger, whose family occupy the upper rooms, went down stairs, he found everything in the lower rooms thrown about, bureaus and dressers ransacked, and various articles thrown about indiscriminately. The kitchen door was standing wide open and the general appearance of the articles in the rooms indicated that they had been shaken up by a cyclone. A careful examination was made, but nothing of value was missing.

FUNERAL. The funeral of the late Jennie H. McReynolds took place this morning at 11 o'clock from the residence on North Main street, in the presence of a very large assembly of sympathizing friends of the bereaved parents. The services were brief and consisted of appropriate scripture reading, by Rev. C. B. Roberts, of the Baptist church, and a fervent prayer by Rev. T. W. Pinkerton, of the Christian church. The choir, Messrs. Benton Blackstone and Judd Edwards, Mrs. Harwood and Miss Louise Knieper, sang the following selections: "Asleep in Jesus," "Abide with Me," and the chant "Weep Not for Her." The floral offerings were many and exquisitely beautiful.

THEY embraced designs representing gates ajar, pillows, crosses, anchors and crowns; also baskets of flowers, and a floral pillow and cross, the latter presented by the members of the deceased's school class. The remains were laid at rest in Greenwood cemetery.

She Said—"Father will Kill Me."

Justice Curtis was awakened from his slumbers at about 11 o'clock last night to unite in marriage a couple from Quincy who came to him with the proper license from Clerk Hardy. The names of the party were Mr. Frank B. Ryan, aged 25, and Miss Lizzie Kendall, aged 23, and both were born and raised in Quincy.

They arrived in Decatur on the 10:40 train last night, and taking a carriage they repaired at once to Justice Curtis' residence, where the expectant bride, who is a beautiful brunette, and was elegantly attired, waited until the groom got the license. It was undoubtedly a runaway match, for when the couple returned to the depot, after the knot had been tied, the bride remarked to her husband, in the hearing of bystanders, "Father will kill us when he learns we are married." Mr. Kendall, the father of the bride, is said to be a man of considerable wealth and prominence in Quincy, and opposed the marriage because Mr. Ryan has no cash and no bright prospects. He has plenty of prospects now. The justice was handsomely remunerated for being waked up at the midnight hour.

The reporter didn't experiment.

IN MEMORIAM. DIED.—After a brief illness, at the residence of her parents, Jennie H. McReynolds, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. O. McReynolds, in the 13th year of her age.

All that could be done was done; but extreme medical skill, quick falling tears, and silent heart agonies could not stay the final summons; and in the early morning of May 29th, 1883, the Master took her sweet young life unto himself.

We write "died," for so we are wont to say when the angel of transition beareth from this sad earth those whose lives are young lives so full of promise, and whose hearts are so full of love and gladness that, while they linger, with us, we forget that the earth is sad; but "She is not dead—the child of our affection—her gone into that school—Where she no longer needs our poor protection. And Christ himself doth rule."

It has been said, that which is so universal as death must, of necessity, be kind, and yet the sorrowing mother who yields up her darling in the early morning of maidenhood, through her heartache and tears, can scarce perceive the kindness and love that, while they linger, with us, we forget that the earth is sad; but "She is not dead—the child of our affection—her gone into that school—Where she no longer needs our poor protection. And Christ himself doth rule."

At this particular time we stand with much trembling, almost fearing to speak at all, so inadequate do all words seem.

This darling, to whose sweet memory we offer this tribute of love, seemed so peculiarly fitted to bless and gladden her home, that we cannot but ask, why must such things be?

Young, and winning, with more than ordinary talent, possessing all those charming and admirable traits of character which made her so inexpressibly dear to those who today, in bitterest agony, mourn the earthly blighting of this fair young life, we do not wonder that there seems, for the time, no kindness in this bitter, bitter cup, pressed to the sorrowing lips—and yet there is a comforting summons from One whose cup was very bitter, whose burden was very heavy, whose grief only He could bear—"Come unto me all ye weary and heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

For this loved daughter, her parents had cherished the fondest hopes, her bright intellect gave promise of rare development in the future, her classic and loving nature seemed unfolding like a rare and sweet exotic to make beautiful the home wherein it bloomed; but, in its budding, the flower was culled—not for this earthly home, from out which, it will be so grievously missed—but to blossom into full perfection in the beautiful Paradise of God. Through our blinding tears, our vision grows dim, and, at last, we "see only as through a glass darkly," and yet we do believe that

"Not as a child shall we again behold her; For when with rapture wild In our embraces we again enfold her, But a fair maiden in her father's mansion, Clothed with celestial grace; And beautiful with all the soft expansion, Shall we behold her face."

MARRIED. On Tuesday evening, May 29, 1933, at Watrousburg, Ill., by Rev. Barton, Dr. LUTHER LEFORS and Miss Jessie F. DRAKE.
